

11/11/11

11/11/11

[The main body of the page is almost entirely obscured by a large black redaction box.]

1 Introduction and Background

Over the past few years, the business press has been filled with reports of unethical behavior by executives and employees of large corporations. The most recent examples include the Volkswagen emissions scandal, the JPMorgan Chase “London Whale” trading loss, and the Boeing 787 Dreamliner safety issues.

These incidents have raised questions about the ethical behavior of business executives and employees. One of the most common questions is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. Another question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. A third question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world.

These incidents have raised questions about the ethical behavior of business executives and employees. One of the most common questions is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. Another question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. A third question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world.

These incidents have raised questions about the ethical behavior of business executives and employees. One of the most common questions is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. Another question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. A third question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world.

These incidents have raised questions about the ethical behavior of business executives and employees. One of the most common questions is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. Another question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. A third question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world.

These incidents have raised questions about the ethical behavior of business executives and employees. One of the most common questions is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. Another question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world. A third question is whether or not these incidents are indicative of a larger problem of unethical behavior in the business world.

Abstract. This paper examines the ethical implications of the use of social media in the workplace. It discusses the challenges that social media poses for organizations and employees, and offers some suggestions for how to address these challenges. The paper is organized as follows: first, a brief overview of social media and its use in the workplace; second, a discussion of the ethical challenges that social media poses; and third, some suggestions for how to address these challenges.

1. Introduction

2. Social Media and the Workplace

3. Ethical Challenges of Social Media

4. Addressing the Challenges

5. Conclusion

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37
38
39
40
41
42
43
44
45
46
47
48
49
50
51
52
53
54
55
56
57
58
59
60
61
62
63
64
65
66
67
68
69
70
71
72
73
74
75
76
77
78
79
80
81
82
83
84
85
86
87
88
89
90
91
92
93
94
95
96
97
98
99
100