Issue: A small number of affected vehicles may be equipped with a European-specification brake fluid reservoir cap instead of the one required for the United States market. If the incorrect cap is present and the owner does not understand the markings, it is possible that the incorrect fluid could be used in the reservoir. Incorrect fluid can make the brake system perform improperly, causing the risk of a crash.

- REPAIR NOT YET AVAILABLE
 - Check daily campaign open inventory report or OMD for affected vehicles in inventory.
 - Audi is working to make a recall remedy available as soon as possible for the affected vehicles. Dealers and owners will be notified in writing once the recall remedy work can be performed.
