Chronology :

On April 4, 2023, customer took possession of their All-Poly Series Tanker-Pumper at which time they proceeded to drive the vehicle home. During their trip, they lost drive to the rear axle on several different occasions at which point they would pull over and shift from pump gear to road gear in order to reengage the rear axle. Once the department reached their destination, we worked with the local service center to troubleshoot the issue. After several months of trial and error, it was concluded there was intermittent power supplied to the pump shift multiplex system which allowed the air pressure for the pump shift to slowly decrease during travel. Programming was adjusted to supply constant power to the system which in turn supplied constant air to the pump shift, not allowing the truck to come out of road gear. At that time, we identified a total of 19 trucks that were programmed incorrectly & came to the conclusion a recall would be necessary.
